The role is built around the responsibilities, systems, and experience your business requires, rather than matching you with a virtual assistant and leaving you to manage the rest.

What to Know Before Hiring

Answers to common questions about HR-managed virtual support.

How is HR-managed virtual support different from hiring a freelancer?

With a freelancer, your business typically handles selection, agreements, onboarding, and the working relationship directly. HR-managed virtual support includes structured role planning, candidate assessment, employment administration, payroll, HR, and ongoing support from Virtual Office Angels.

Can the role require industry or software experience?

Yes. The role can include the industry knowledge, software experience, and working hours your business requires. We assess candidates against those needs before you review the shortlist. Final suitability depends on the role and available candidate experience.
